Squatting is Legal

Any reasonable* number of persons in good standing** who do not otherwise have a safe place to live may live together for free in any house or apartment that is safe and not already reasonably used by others as their primary place of residence.

Residential buildings shall be used for shelter, not rental income.

Houses and apartments belong to those who reasonably use them as their primary place of residence, for as long as they do so.

All people in good standing** have no need for rental income or any other money because they have an equal right to freely take products from the economy (housing, food, clothing, services, etc.) according to need and reasonable desire, or to receive scarce products equitably rationed according to need.

* What is reasonable is determined by the local Assembly of Egalitarians***

** All persons are in good standing unless the Assembly determines that, after taking into account the particular circumstances and reasonableness, they are violating the principle of "from each according to ability, to each according to need."
